In last week's article on the city council meeting it was reported that council president Michael Tolencio abstained from a caucus vote to approve the mayor's appointment of Patricia Wittington and that councilman Abe Caloro voted to approve the same appointment. The article should have read that Tolencio voted to approve the appointment and Caloro abstained.

SETTING THE EXAMPLE

I'd rather see a sermon than hear one, any day.

I'd rather see some walk with me, than merely show the way.

The eye's a better pupil and more willing than the ear.

Fine counsel is confusing, but example is always clear.

The best of all the preachers are the men who live their words.

For, to see the good in action is what everybody needs.

I can say, I'll learn how to do it if you'll let me see it done.

I can watch your hand in action through your tongue too fast may run.

Although the lectures you deliver may be very wise and true, I'd rather learn my lesson by observing what you do.

For I may misunderstand you and the fine advice you give, But it's not misunderstanding how you act and how you live.

About your Social Security office

The network of over 1,300 Social Security offices around the country makes the services of the Social Security Administration available to everyone. However, many people are not aware of the range of services available from the Social Security office, Richard Olenchak, Social Security manager in Carbondale, said recently.

In general, there are six times when a person should get in touch with a Social Security office - to apply for Social Security number, when they stop work and wish to apply for retirement benefits, if someone in the family dies, if someone is disabled to work for a year or more, at 65 even if the person does not retire, or if someone in the family suffers permanent disability, and if someone is a survivor of a deceased worker.

Processing claims for retirement, survivors and disability benefits and helping people with their Medicare claims are a large part of the Social Security office's volume of business, Olenchak said.

However, the Social Security office also handles claims for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) which makes payments to people who are blind or disabled.

At the Social Security office, people can check the earnings credited to their Social Security record or change their names in the Social Security records.
